WALKER CASE CLIMAX NEAR; SIDES READY

Civic Drama - Effort to Remove New York Mayor to be Enacted.

JIMMY IS CONFIDENT

Roosevelt's Decision is Important One.

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN.

SCHOHARIE, N. Y., Aug. 11.—Supreme Court Justice F. Walter Bliss today refused to restrain Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt from hearing the removal charges against Mayor James J. Walker.

Justice Bliss announced his decision within five minutes after Sidney Levine, counsel for George Connelly, of New York had applied for an order prohibiting Governor Roosevelt from hearing the charges against the Fammany mayor.

ALBANY, Aug. 11.—The curtain lifts at the state capitol this afternoon on the trial phase of a great American civic drama—the public hearing granted Mayor James J. Walker of New York City by Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt on charges growing out of the lengthy inquiry by the Hofstadter legislative committee.

Whether or not Walker, idol of Tammany Hall, will be removed from office is the vital decision which Governor Roosevelt, a candidate for the presidency, will make shortly after the popular, wise-cracking mayor is given his final "day in court."

HOLDS SPOTLIGHT

The hearing will be momentous, if not spectacular. It will draw the national spotlight even though it occurs on the same day President Hoover makes his speech of acceptance in Washington. For the cast of characters in the drama staged here today includes three of the country's foremost personalities —Governor Roosevelt, Mayor Walker and Samuel Seabury, the great civic crusader. Upwards of 60 newspaper correspondents are on the ground to report the proceedings.

Mayor Walker, who was met upon his arrival in Albany by a brass band and 5,000 cheering people, today maintained a nonchalant "I'm not worried," attitude as the zero hour approached. He said he is here "to meet the charges" and hopes Governor Roosevelt will accord him the right to cross-examine. By that it was taken he meant the right to question Seabury, his arch accuser, among others.

Seabury came to town quietly and was quartered with his staff of assistants in a hotel not far from where Walker is stopping.

GOVERNOR BUSY

Governor Roosevelt, in the past 24 hours, has devoted considerable time to the Walker case. No indication was given by the Governor regarding what his ultimate decision will be, however. There was much speculation in Albany today on this point and rumors were rife that there was a strong probability the Governor would remove Walker. It was also reported, on the other hand, that close advisers of the Governor had informed him it would be a legal and political mistake to remove the mayor. The Governor has insisted there will be no politics involved in his decision.

The Governor has been in lengthy conference at the executive mansion with Edward J. Flynn, secretary of state, and one of Roosevelt's closest political advisers. Politicians around Albany say Flynn thinks it would be a political mistake for the Governor to remove Walker. Mr. Roosevelt also has been going over the case

G. O. P. AWAITS HOOVER TALK

May 'Go To Country' On Record; Prohibition Sentiment Question.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 11.—Herbert Hoover will formally accept the Republican presidential nomination here tonight and proclaim his willingness to go to the country "on the record."

The major part of Mr. Hoover's long-awaited speech will deal with economic matters and the measures which his administration has taken to combat depression.

But the ears of the country will be listening more attentively for what he will have to say about the thorny subject of prohibition. Party leaders rolling into the capital from every state during the past few days seem interested in little else, notwithstanding the undeniable importance of other issues.

BEGINS AT 9:15

What Mr. Hoover will say about this—to him — most ipeoplexing problem will not be disclosed until about 9:15 o'clock tonight when he faces a hand-picked audience of about 4,000 people in Constitution hall.

There are rumors aplenty. Insistent Republican wets from the Atlantic seaboard states seem confident that the president will "go wetter" than the Chicago platform, with its much-criticised plank merely offering the country an opportunity to vote on the question of retaining the 18th amendment or substituting for it a more liberal article.

CLARKE USER OF DRUG, DISCLOSE

COURTHOUSE, Miami, Fla., Aug. 11.— Haden Clarke, young writer for whose murder Captain William N. Lancaster, British flyer and war hero, is on trial, was addicted to Marijuana, the Mexican form of the insidious oriental drug, hasheesh.

This was brought out today by Defense Counsel James M. Carson in the testimony of Dick Lavender, of New Orleans, an admitted drinking companion of Clarke.

Clarke smoked Marijuana in the form of cigarets, Lavender testified.

The defense contends that the use of Marijuana induces a tendency to suicide in a neurotic user.

319 PASS BAR

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11—Names of 319 persons who successfully passed the June bar examination were announced today by Seba H. Miller, clerk of the supreme court. Sixty eight per cent of the class of 467 candidates passed. Earl P. Schneider of Urbana, O., with a 93 per cent received the highest grade.

NEEDLE REMOVED

A needle was removed from the right foot of Eugene Hampp, aged 9, son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Hampp 325 E. Mound-st, Wednesday evening at Berger hospital by Dr. D. V. Courtright.

The youth stepped on the needle.

RESIGNATION OF BRICKER IS REFUSED

White Tells G. O. P. Candidate to 'Clear His Table,' Then Quit.

RATE CASES MEANT

Man Planned to Devote Time to Campaign.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11.—Governor George White today refused to accept the resignation of Attorney John W. Bricker, Republican nominee for attorney general, as a member of the state utilities commission.

In a letter to Bricker, the chief executive requested Bricker to "continue as a member of the public utilities commission until you have cleared your desk."

Bricker handed his resignation to the Governor Aug. 8, requesting that it be accepted so that he could devote all his time to his candidacy as attorney general nominee.

GAS, FUEL CASE

The Governor in virtually ordering Bricker to "clear his desk" was referring to the undecided cases of the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company, the Bell Telephone company and other large rate cases pending before the utilities commission.

"I have your letter of Aug. 8 tendering your resignation as a member of the public utilities commission," Gov. White wrote Bricker today. "While I recognize in general the reason you set forth for desiring to discontinue your connection with the commission, I must decline to accept your resignation at this time.

"There have been pending before the commission for several years past some cases which, by reason of their magnitude and the large number of our citizens affected, are of transcendent public importance.

"I refer particularly to the case of the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company and the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

Following news of the Governor's action Chairman E. J. Hopple of the commission ordered the commission to assemble Monday, Aug. 22, to begin consideration of the Columbus rate case. In a statement he issued, Hopple said the commission previously had set Aug. 22 to take up the case and that Bricker had consented. Bricker's resignation he said was "news" to him.

"I note the observation in your letter: 'There is nothing which I can personally do to hasten the determination of those important cases now pending and undecided.'

TO CONTINUE CASE

"In view of the fact however that, together with the other members of the commission, you have

LOCAL WOODMEN OBTAIN REVIEW

Forestry Teams of Several Cities To Report Here For Contest Aug. 21.

Circleville has been designated as the logical place for the Modern Woodmen of America's Forestry Team, Battalion Review to be held at Heise field on August 21st.

Forestry teams from Lancaster, Washington C. H., Williamsport, Chillicothe, Columbus, Ashville, Commercial Point and Circleville will hold the review before Major C. F. Munz on that date in preparation for the Ohio-Michigan district encampment to be held at Detroit, Sept. 4, 5, 6, and 7 in conjunction with the Michigan State Fair.

The local Forestry team of Camp 3,648 has been working diligently in preparation for this encampment and has worked hard in bringing to Circleville this review.

Efforts are now being made to get the local American Legion Post Drum Corps to assist on the days of the review.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE ON MOTHER'S GRAVE

POMEROY, Aug. 11.—Standing over his mother's grave at Long Bottom, 15 miles from here, James C. Cross, prominent Omaha, Neb., attorney, shot himself in the head and in the abdomen according to county authorities today.

He was rushed to a hospital at Parkersburg, W. Va., where no hope was held for his recovery.

GAS, OIL STOLEN

Sam Grant has reported to police that the garage at his place of business has been entered and gasoline and oil taken.

Radio Greatest Development In Lifetime Son Of German Emigrants Declares.

Eighty-Seven Years Of Residence Here Are Recalled By Henry 'Daddy' Foerst

Served As Groceryman, Woodworker, Soldier, School Custodian, Court Bailiff.

HAVING passed through four score years and seven, Henry "Daddy" Foerst is proud of the fact that he has been a resident of Circleville all these years. He still enjoys his daily walks up town to see his old friends.

It is a pleasure to talk to Mr. Foerst and listen to vivid stories of bygone days, days that remain fresh in his mind when telling about incidents that happened over half a century ago. He recalls dates with ease.

PARENTS EMIGRATED

Mr. Foerst was born in this city on August 7th, 1845, on what is now Mill-st. He comes from old German stock being the son of George Adam and Elizabeth Blumingshine Foerst, who came to America from Zeiskam, Bavaria, Germany in 1838.

His parents came through Circleville from Cleveland on the Ohio and Erie Canal and first settled in Piketon. Three years later they moved to Circleville and spent the remainder of their lives in this city.

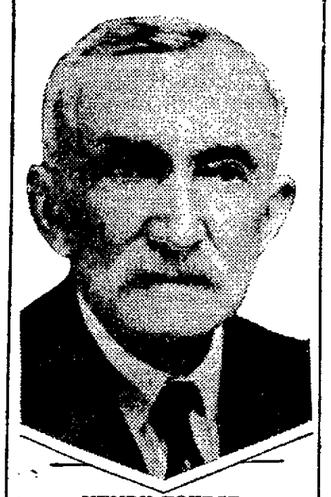
"Daddy" clearly remembers his first school days when he attended the Academy on Watt - st, which was located where Mrs. John Strahm now lives. Schools were different in those old days, he recalls, and pupils did not have all the subjects to study that the children now have.

WORKED IN GROCERY

Being from the industrious German stock he did not lose much time in getting to work and his first job was in the Kellstadt grocery store at Washington and Main-sts, where J. Walters' grocery is now located.

He worked here for two years.

After his grocery experience he decided to learn a trade and was an apprentice for Peter Bartholomew in the woodworking industry, which had a good future at that time.



HENRY FOERST

While learning this trade the Civil War was going on and having a desire to become a member of the Union Army, although being in his teens, he couldn't resist and in May, 1864 he enlisted in Co. K, O. V. I., 155th Regiment. He left Circleville as a member of this organization and went to Virginia and North Carolina, where most of his enlistment period was spent. He was detailed on special duty when the big battle of Petersburg was fought and clearly remembers the terrible struggle that ensued. He was honorably discharged from the Union Army on August 27, 1864.

WAS WOODWORKER

On his return to Circleville he continued his work in the woodworking trade and returned to Kellstadt's grocery in 1872 and remained there for five years. Then for one year he associated himself with McLaughlin's woodwordking shop.

The lure of the grocery store was too much for "Daddy" and we next find him in partnership with Frederick Schneider from 1872 to 1885 with a store on E. Main-st where E. S. Neuding is now located. This partnership was dissolved when Mr. Schneider went west and Henry Weimer joined with our subject in a store known as Foerst and Weimer. When Mr. Weimer left the partnership "Daddy" moved his gro-

BANDIT BAND THOT BROKEN

Murders of Two Policemen, Scores of Robberies Are Thought Solved.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 11—With the arrest of two alleged bandits here, police today said they had broken up a robber band responsible for the slaying of two policemen, the wounding of an other and nearly a score of robberies in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

One other member of the ring was sought.

Donald Rohr, alias Melvin Price, 27, and Edgar Luker, alias Bill Cope, 35, both of Indianapolis, were arrested here and were taken to Muncie to face trial for the alleged murder of Patrolman Ovid McCracken during a holdup of theatre messengers there April 24.

Three others were awaiting trial in Springfield, O., for the alleged murder of Patrolman Charles Holt of that city. They were Russell Ijams alias Campbell, Sherman Clemons and William Garrison, all of Indianapolis.

Both Rohr and Luker allegedly confessed their part in the slaying of Patrolman McCracken, who formerly pitched for the Detroit American league baseball team and minor league clubs.

COGNOVIT FILED

The Clarksburg Discount Co., through its attorney, Richard Simkins, has filed a cognovit suit against William A. Sells for $709.21, in common pleas court.

GIRL RESCUES 5 FROM FIRE

Dayton Scene of Heroic Act Which May Prove Fatal To Perpetrator.

DAYTON, Aug. 11.— A pretty 18-year-old farmer girl probably sacrificed her life today to save five brothers and sisters who slept while fire eating into the walls of their home threatened death for all.

The heroine of the fire, Catherine Heck, finally was rescued by her mother, Mrs. Clenn Heck, who broke into the burning house by climbing through a window but physicians feared the girl may die.

First, however, she completed her task dragging the brothers and sisters outdoors before she was overcome by smoke.

The roof and walls of the house located six miles west of this city tumbled about her as she ran in and out hauling her human cargo with her on each trip.

Her mother and father busy with outdoor chores when the fire broke out discovered the tragedy while their daughter lay in the ruins overcome. The mother found her.

The house was completely destroyed. A coal oil stove was blamed for causing the blaze.

BIND PETERS OVER

Roscoe Peters, Corwin-st, was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond when he was arraigned before Squire E. C. Friece, Wednesday afternoon, on a forgery charge. He was remanded to the county jail in default of bond.

FIRE CALL

The fire department answered a call at the rear of the Clarence Wolfe, grocery, Court and Pleasant-sts, Wednesday at 6:55 p. m., when a pile of trash was burning. No damage was done.

By popular demand, "Pickaway-Co's Hero," The Herald's film comedy which has been on the program at the Clifton for the past two days, has been held over for the balance of the week.

Capacity houses have greeted the picture which was made here with local scenes and characters and many requests that the film be held over were received by the theater management from persons unable to see the attraction during the first two days of its run.

The audiences greeted the picture of local talent with a whizzbang burst of applause, for the showhouse was crowded from first showing until last and hearty laughter rang out at the antics of the immutable husband and his determined spouse who attempted to shield him from the wiles of attractions other than those of the home fireside.

CAST PERFORMS WELL

Besides C. G. Chaffin as Mr. Henpeck, and Mrs. Mary G. Morris as Mrs. Henpeck, the other actors were Miss Eleanor Anderson, the heroine, known as Baby Ethel, who "flappered" her way into the hearts of two rivals, one of whom won, regardless of ingenuous methods; Miss Jeanne Crowe, country flapper, who on roller skates, took some terrific flops, but always got there; Robert Rooney, who as Billy Brown, the hero showed he had "it"; Howard White, the rival "cub" reporter on a newspaper (The Herald), who after receiving a swift kick went forth and scooped the world with the story of Mr. Henpeck's escapade with Baby.

Interspersed with the comedy were showings on newspaper life, from office boy to managing editor, and from the city editor's copy chute to the press room.

All in all it was excellent work for amateurs, who were assembled, tutored and rehearsed, "shot" and screened, all within the brief space of 10 days, thereby paying excellent tribute to the genius of Don C. Newland, director of the show, who came here for the purpose of

MORE TAXING RATES LOWER

Darby-Twp Obtains More Than $1 Less For 1932; Hearing To Continue.

Several more tax rates were lowered in Pickaway-co Wednesday by the county budget commission. The commission was resting Thursday because of the injunction suit against the commissioners in which two members of the commission, Prosecutor E. L. Crist and Auditor Cliff White are interested.

Darby-twp was given the largest reduction in tax being slashed from $17.10 per thousand in 1931 to $16 per thousand in 1932. Ninety cents of the reduction is in schools and the other twenty cents in the fact that the state office building expense is off the list.

Deercreek-twp received a reduction of twenty cents on the thousand from $15.80 in 1931 to $15.60 in 1932 because of the office building and Williamsport corporation received the same slash from $18.60 to $18.40.

Darby - twp trustees asked $4,800 for expenses during the year and will receive $3,508.96. Darby-twp school sought $18,825.80 and received $18,903.63; Deercreek-twp asked $5,900 and will obtain $5,590.56; Deercreek-twp school asked $25,000 and will receive $19,842.56 while Williamsport corporation seeking $1,200 will receive $1,013.85.

Friday morning Harrison-twp, Ashville and South Bloomfield will be given hearings and Friday afternoon Jackson-twp.

TWO ARE KILLED

DAYTON, Aug. 11.—Two persons were dead today and six others were in hospitals as the result of an automobile collision in Residence Park, west of here, late last night.

Betty Johnson, aged 6, was instantly killed and her father, Robert Johnson, 37, driver of one of the cars, was injured and died a short time later.

Johnson's automobile crashed into another machine driven by Vernon West, 35. The latter and his wife and a daughter, Alice Mary, and a sister-in-law, Opal Weaver, were seriously injured.

Mrs. Robert Johnson and her sister-in-law, Evelyn Nelson, passengers in Johnson's auto, also were critically hurt.

All of the injured were rushed to Dayton hospitals

RIN TIN TIN DIES

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11 - Rin Tin Tin, 14 years old, famous German police dog star of silent motion pictures, was dead today, on the eve of plans to feature him in a series of talking pictures.

He died of old age at the home of his owner, Lee Duncan, who said that Rin Tin Tin, Jr., son of the famous old dog, would fill the screen roles planned for the original dog hero.

Rin Tin Tin was buried in the back yard of Duncan's home.

MOVIE STARS WED

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—The new Mrs. John Gilbert was to spend the first day of her honeymoon today by working on a motion picture.

Mrs. Gilbert, who was Virginia Bruce, pretty film actress, and Gilbert, screen idol, were married at 6 o'clock last night at Gilbert's bungalow at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, about 30 minutes after she had finished picture work for the day "as a white girl stranded in an African Jungle."

Irving Thalberg, M-G-M executive, was best man, and Mrs. Donald Ogden Stewart was matron of honor.

BLAINE DITCH NOW IN COURT

Suit Back and Forth in Courts For Seven Years is Again Being Heard.

A new phase in the almost-ancient Blaine ditch case was being written in common pleas court Thursday before Judge Frank M. Clevenger of Wilmington. An injunction suit of Mrs. Lucas of Darby-twp against the county commissioners and Cliff M. White, county auditor, in an effort to prevent construction of the ditch was being heard.

The case which involves a Darby-twp ditch has been in the courts since 1925 when Mrs. Lucas objected to the ruling of the county commissioners, at that time, J. R. Hott, George Curry and A. E. Schleich; that the ditch was a necessity and should be constructed on the petition of Ernest L. Blaine and others.

When contested in common pleas court before Former Judge Clarence Curtain, the court sustained the objection and when Blaine and others carried the case to the district court of appeals they were favored with a reversal of Judge Curtain's decision.

WHITECRAFT CALLED

The case was ordered back for trial and Judge Harley Whitecraft of Logan ordered to hear the case. He sustained the commissioners and again Mrs. Lucas went to the court of appeals, this time the court of the Zanesville district hearing the objection at Mt. Gilead. The common pleas court was sustained.

Nothing was done then until recently when Mrs. Lucas brought up the question of compensation and damages and with that case pending she filed an injuction and mandamus action against the commissioners and auditor and that is now being heard.

Attorneys in the case are Richard Simkins, C. A. Weldon and C. C. Crabbe, former attorney general, for Mrs. Lucas, with Charles H. May and I. F. Snyder counsel for Blaine and E. L. Crist for the commissioners.

KILLS WIFE THEN TAKES OWN LIFE

ATHENS, Aug. 11.—Throwing downtown Athens into an uproar, Frank Robinson, 52, former convict, shot and killed his estranged wife and then committed suicide in a restaurant here today, police said.

Mrs. Ethel Robinson, 43, his wife, who was a waitress in the restaurant, had testified against him last year when he was placed on trial for shooting her father, Fred Laughlin, and the shooting today was for revenge, investigators believed.

Robinson and his wife formerly resided at Stewart, O., near here. Robinson was paroled a few months ago from the Ohio penitentiary.

NEW BONUS CAMP IS BEING FORMED

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Aug. 11 — Rumors that friends were underway to expand the bonus army outpost established here into a National encampment caused borough authorities no little concern today.

The "army" of more than 200 veterans who established themselves at the old national camp here gave no indication of returning to their homes as they prepared to "dig in" until Congress reconvenes late in the year.

SMITH DIVORCE

Hattie Smith of Fox Post Office, through her attorneys, Adkins and Adkins, has filed suit for divorce from Grover C. Smith, also of Fox P. O., in which she charges extreme cruelty.

The Smiths were married Nov. 13, 1913, and have no children but have adopted two of which she asks custody besides divorce and alimony.

JACKSON IN JAIL

M. J. Mississippi Jackson, colored, was taken to the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, Wednesday, where he began to serve a sentence of from one to seven years for receiving and concealing stolen property.

OHIO CROP VALUE UP THIS WEEK

MARKET IS BOOSTED

Some Farmers Expect $1 Before Winter.

By International News Service

Riding the upturn of the market estimated wheat and corn crops in Ohio increased $3,718,000 in value during the past 10 days, a survey by International News Service showed today.

Although Buckeye State farmers faced the prospect that their crops would not equal the bumper yields of 1931, they were given the cheering reassurance that the general increase in commodity prices may in a measure bring back prosperity to the farm.

AT 51 CENTS HERE

The farm bureau quoted wheat at 51 cents in Pickaway-co today.

At present market values, the corn and wheat crop is worth $49,770,000. Ten days ago it would have brought only $46,060,000.

Farmers, with but few exceptions, are being offered 48 cents a bushel for wheat and there were some prospects that the price wave might bring the price up to 50 cents within the next few days.

49 AT KENTON

At Kenton, wheat hit its highest peak of the year as dealers there offered 49 cents a bushel for the product. In sharp contrast with reports in Fairfield-co that dealers were buying up wheat for slightly less than 40 cents. The present price of wheat 10 days ago was 46 cents.

Many southern Ohio farmers, according to reports, are storing their wheat in barns, confidentially expecting $1-a-bushel wheat by the Christmas holidays.

M. R. Maney, manager of the grain department of the Ohio Farm bureau at Columbus, estimated that 30,000,000 bushels of which would be harvested in Ohio this year. Though below the bumper 50,000,000 bushel crop of last year, it still is above the five year average. Acreage sown was nine per cent less than last year and the latter fact also accounts for part of the decrease.

40 IN 1931

In 1931, on August 1, wheat sold for 40 cents a bushel.

Corn was less fortunate in its advances in the last 10 days but nevertheless it scored a gain. It was quoted at 27 cents a bushel, an increase of one cent over the price of 10 days ago but nevertheless a substantial gain when it is considered that 131,000,000 bushels will be taken from the stocks this year.

Just as farm bureau officials issued a statement yesterday saying that rain was needed in many sections of the state for the corn and potato crops, fortune smiled on the farmers and a slow, steady rain started falling.

RAIN WOULD AID

Maney declared that the slow steady rain would be more beneficial to the crops than a sharp, heavy storm. He said he had received no reports of any rain damage because of yesterday's showers.

The crop expert also said there was an unusually large acreage of soybeans in Ohio this year and "all reports indicate an unusually heavy yield of both beans and hay."

CONVICTS HUNTED

ZANESVILLE, Aug. 11.—All agencies of law and order in Muskingum and Perry-cos today were engaged in a desperate manhunt for Charles Aphey, Newark, patrolman slayer, who, with two other convicts, escaped from the Rosevill Brick Plant of the Ohio State Penitentiary yesterday.

A possee of 15 armed guards from the brick plant was further augmented today by sheriff's deputies and officers from villages in the two counties. Though the search was being pushed with equal determination in both counties, the three fleeing convicts are believed to have doubled back on their tracks and to be hding somewhere in southern Muskingum co.

RATE CASES MEANT

Man Planned to Devote Time to Campaign.

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11.—Governor George White today refused to accept the resignation of Attorney John W. Bricker, Republican nominee for attorney general, as a member of the state utilities commission.

In a letter to Bricker, the chief executive requested Bricker to "continue as a member of the public utilities commission until you have cleared your desk."

Bricker handed his resignation to the Governor Aug. 8, requesting that it be accepted so that he could devote all his time to his candidacy as attorney general nominee.

GAS, FUEL CASE

The Governor in virtually ordering Bricker to "clear his desk" was referring to the undecided cases of the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company, the Bell Telephone company and other large rate cases pending before the utilities commission.

"I have your letter of Aug. 8 tendering your resignation as a member of the public utilities commission," Gov. White wrote Bricker today. "While I recognize in general the reason you set forth for desiring to discontinue your connection with the commission, I must decline to accept your resignation at this time.

"There have been pending before the commission for several years past some cases which, by reason of their magnitude and the large number of our citizens affected, are of transcendent public importance.

"I refer particularly to the case of the Columbus Gas and Fuel Company and the Ohio Bell Telephone company.

Following news of the Governor's action Chairman E. J. Hopple of the commission ordered the commission to assemble Monday, Aug. 22, to begin consideration of the Columbus rate case. In a statement he issued, Hopple said the commission previously had set Aug. 22 to take up the case and that Bricker had consented. Bricker's resignation he said was "news" to him.

"I note the observation in your letter: 'There is nothing which I can personally do to hasten the determination of those important cases now pending and undecided.'

TO CONTINUE CASE

"In view of the fact however that, together with the other members of the commission, you have

LOCAL WOODMEN OBTAIN REVIEW

Forestry Teams of Several Cities To Report Here For Contest Aug. 21.

Circleville has been designated as the logical place for the Modern Woodmen of America's Forestry Team, Battalion Review to be held at Heise field on August 21st.

Forestry teams from Lancaster, Washington C. H., Williamsport, Chillicothe, Columbus, Ashville, Commercial Point and Circleville will hold the review before Major C. F. Munz on that date in preparation for the Ohio-Michigan district encampment to be held at Detroit, Sept. 4, 5, 6, and 7 in conjunction with the Michigan State Fair.

The local Forestry team of Camp 3,648 has been working diligently in preparation for this encampment and has worked hard in bringing to Circleville this review.

Efforts are now being made to get the local American Legion Post Drum Corps to assist on the days of the review.

ATTEMPTS SUICIDE ON MOTHER'S GRAVE

POMEROY, Aug. 11.—Standing over his mother's grave at Long Bottom, 15 miles from here, James C. Cross, prominent Omaha, Neb., attorney, shot himself in the head and in the abdomen according to county authorities today.

He was rushed to a hospital at Parkersburg , W. Va., where no hope was held for his recovery.

GAS, OIL STOLEN

Sam Grant has reported to police that the garage at his place of business has been entered and gasoline and oil taken.

Radio Greatest Development In Lifetime Son Of German Emigrants Declares.

Eighty - Seven Years Of Residence Here Are Recalled By Henry 'Daddy' Foerst

Served As Groceryman, Woodworker, Soldier, School Custodian, Court Bailiff.

HAVING passed through four score years and seven, Henry "Daddy" Foerst is proud of the fact that he has been a resident of Circleville all these years. He still enjoys his daily walks up town to see his old friends.

It is a pleasure to talk to Mr. Foerst and listen to vivid stories of bygone days, days that remain fresh in his mind when telling about incidents that happened over half a century ago. He recalls dates with ease.

PARENTS EMIGRATED

Mr. Foerst was born in this city on August 7th, 1845, on what is now Mill-st. He comes from old German stock being the son of George Adam and Elizabeth Blumingshine Foerst, who came to America from Zeiskam, Bavaria, Germany in 1838.

His parents came through Circleville from Cleveland on the Ohio and Erie Canal and first settled in Piketon. Three years later they moved to Circleville and spent the remainder of their lives in this city.

"Daddy" clearly remembers his first school days when he attended the Academy on Watt - st, which was located where Mrs. John Strahm now lives. Schools were different in those old days, he recalls, and pupils did not have all the subjects to study that the children now have.

WORKED IN GROCERY

Being from the industrious German stock he did not lose much time in getting to work and his first job was in the Kellstadt grocery store at Washington and Main-sts, where J. Walters' grocery is now located.

He worked here for two years.

After his grocery experience he decided to learn a trade and was an apprentice for Peter Bartholomew in the woodworking industry, which had a good future at that time.

While learning this trade the Civil War was going on and having a desire to become a member of the Union Army, although being in his teens, he couldn't resist and in May, 1864 he enlisted in Co. K, O. V. I., 155th Regiment. He left Circleville as a member of this organization and went to Virginia and North Carolina, where most of his enlistment period was spent. He was detailed on special duty when the big battle of Petersburg was fought and clearly remembers the terrible struggle that ensued. He was honorably discharged from the Union Army on August 27, 1864.

WAS WOODWORKER

On his return to Circleville he continued his work in the woodworking trade and returned to Kellstadt's grocery in 1872 and remained there for five years. Then for one year he associated himself with McLaughlin's woodwordking shop.

The lure of the grocery store was too much for "Daddy" and we next find him in partnership with Frederick Schneider from 1872 to 1885 with a store on E. Main-st where E. S. Neuding is now located. This partnership was dissolved when Mr. Schneider went west and Henry Weimer joined with our subject in a store known as Foerst and Weimer. When Mr. Weimer left the partnership "Daddy" moved his gro-

BANDIT BAND THOT BROKEN

Murders of Two Policemen, Scores of Robberies Are Thought Solved.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Aug. 11—With the arrest of two alleged bandits here, police today said they had broken up a robber band responsible for the slaying of two policemen, the wounding of an other and nearly a score of robberies in Indiana, Illinois and Ohio.

One other member of the ring was sought.

Donald Rohr, alias Melvin Price, 27, and Edgar Luker, alias Bill Cope, 35, both of Indianapolis, were arrested here and were taken to Muncie to face trial for the alleged murder of Patrolman Ovid McCracken during a holdup of theatre messengers there April 24.

Three others were awaiting trial in Springfield, O., for the alleged murder of Patrolman Charles Holt of that city. They were Russell Ijams alias Campbell, Sherman Clemons and William Garrison, all of Indianapolis.

Both Rohr and Luker allegedly confessed their part in the slaying of Patrolman McCracken, who formerly pitched for the Detroit American league baseball team and minor league clubs.

COGNOVIT FILED

The Clarksburg Discount Co., through its attorney, Richard Simkins, has filed a cognovit suit against William A. Sells for $709.21, in common pleas court.

GIRL RESCUES 5 FROM FIRE

Dayton Scene of Heroic Act Which May Prove Fatal To Perpetrator.

DAYTON, Aug. 11.— A pretty 18-year-old farmer girl probably sacrificed her life today to save five brothers and sisters who slept while fire eating into the walls of their home threatened death for all.

The heroine of the fire, Catherine Heck, finally was rescued by her mother, Mrs. Clenn Heck, who broke into the burning house by climbing through a window but physicians feared the girl may die.

First, however, she completed her task dragging the brothers and sisters outdoors before she was overcome by smoke.

The roof and walls of the house located six miles west of this city tumbled about her as she ran in and out hauling her human cargo with her on each trip.

Her mother and father busy with outdoor chores when the fire broke out discovered the tragedy while their daughter lay in the ruins overcome. The mother found her.

The house was completely destroyed. A coal oil stove was blamed for causing the blaze.

BIND PETERS OVER

Roscoe Peters, Corwin-st, was bound over to the grand jury under $500 bond when he was arraigned before Squire E. C. Friece, Wednesday afternoon, on a forgery charge. He was remanded to the county jail in default of bond.

FIRE CALL

The fire department answered a call at the rear of the Clarence Wolfe, grocery, Court and Pleasant-sts, Wednesday at 6:55 p. m., when a pile of trash was burning. No damage was done.

By popular demand, "Pickaway-Co's Hero," The Herald's film comedy which has been on the program at the Cliftona for the past two days, has been held over for the balance of the week.

Capacity houses have greeted the picture which was made here with local scenes and characters and many requests that the film be held over were received by the theater management from persons unable to see the attraction during the first two days of its run.

The audiences greeted the picture of local talent with a whizzbang burst of applause, for the showhouse was crowded from first showing until last and hearty laughter rang out at the antics of the inimitable husband and his determined spouse who attempted to shield him from the wiles of attractions other than those of the home fireside.

CAST PERFORMS WELL

Besides C. G. Chalfin as Mr. Henpeck, and Mrs. Mary G. Morris as Mrs. Henpeck, the other actors were Miss Eleanor Anderson, the heroine, known as Baby Ethel, who "flappered" her way into the hearts of two rivals, one of whom won, regardless of ingenuous methods; Miss Jeanne Crowe, country flapper, who on roller skates, took some terrific flops, but always got there; Robert Rooney, who as Billy Brown, the hero showed he had "it"; Howard White, the rival "cub" reporter on a newspaper (The Herald), who after receiving a swift kick went forth and scooped the world with the story of Mr. Henpeck's escapade with Baby.

Interspersed with the comedy were showings on newspaper life, from office boy to managing editor, and from the city editor's copy chute to the press room.

All in all it was excellent work for amateurs, who were assembled, tutored and rehearsed, "shot" and screened, all within the brief space of 10 days, thereby paying excellent tribute to the genius of Don O. Newland, director of the show, who came here for the purpose of HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—The new Mrs. John Gilbert was to spend the first day of her honeymoon today by working on a motion picture.

Mrs. Gilbert, who was Virginia Bruce, pretty film actress, and Gilbert, screen idol, were married at 6 o'clock last night at Gilbert's bungalow at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, about 30 minutes after she had finished picture work for the day "as a white girl stranded in an African Jungle."

Irving Thalberg, M-G-M executive, was best man, and Mrs. Donald Ogden Stewart was matron of honor.

BLAINE DITCH NOW IN COURT

Suit Back and Forth in Courts For Seven Years is Again Being Heard.

A new phase in the almost-ancient Blaine ditch case was being written in common pleas court Thursday before Judge Frank M. Clevenger of Wilmington. An injunction suit of Mrs. Lucas of Darby-twp against the county commissioners and Cliff M. White, county auditor, in an effort to prevent construction of the ditch was being heard.

The case which involves a Darby-twp ditch has been in the courts since 1925 when Mrs. Lucas objected to the ruling of the county commissioners, at that time, J. R. Hott, George Curry and A. E. Schleich, that the ditch was a necessity and should be constructed on the petition of Ernest L. Blaine and others.

When contested in common pleas court before Former Judge Clarence Curtain, the court sustained the objection and when Blaine and others carried the case to the district court of appeals they were favored with a reversal of Judge Curtain's decision.

WHITECRAFT CALLED

The case was ordered back for trial and Judge Harley Whitecraft of Logan ordered to hear the case. He sustained the commissioners and again Mrs. Lucas went to the court of appeals, this time the court of the Zanesville district hearing the objection at Mt. Gilead. The common pleas court was sustained.

Nothing was done then until recently when Mrs. Lucas brought up the question of compensation and damages and with that case pending she filed an injuction and mandamus action against the commissioners and auditor and that is now being heard.

Attorneys in the case are Richard Simkins, C. A. Weldon and C. C. Crabbe, former attorney general, for Mrs. Lucas, with Charles H. May and I. F. Snyder counsel for Blaine and E. L. Crist for the commissioners.

MORE TAXING RATES LOWER

Darby-Twp Obtains More Than $1 Less For 1932; Hearing To Continue.

Several more tax rates were lowered in Pickaway-co Wednesday by the county budget commission. The commission was resting Thursday because of the injunction suit against the commissioners in which two members of the commission, Prosecutor E. L. Crist and Auditor Cliff White are interested.

Darby-twp was given the largest reduction in tax being slashed from $17.10 per thousand in 1931 to $16 per thousand in 1932. Ninety cents of the reduction is in schools and the other twenty cents in the fact that the state office building expense is off the list.

Deercreek-twp received a reduction of twenty cents on the thousand from $15.80 in 1931 to $15.60 in 1932 because of the office building and Williamsport corporation received the same slash from $18.60 to $18.40.

Darby - twp trustees asked $4,800 for expenses during the year and will receive $3,508.96. Darby-twp school sought $18,825.80 and received $18,903.63; Deercreek-twp asked $5,900 and will obtain $5,590.56; Deercreek-twp school asked $25,000 and will receive $19,842.56 while Williamsport corporation seeking $1,200 will receive $1,013.85.

Friday morning Harrison-twp, Ashville and South Bloomfield will be given hearings and Friday afternoon Jackson-twp.

TWO ARE KILLED

DAYTON, Aug. 11.—Two persons were dead today and six others were in hospitals as the result of an automobile collision in Residence Park, west of here, late last night.

Betty Johnson, aged 6, was instantly killed and her father, Robert Johnson, 37, driver of one of the cars, was injured and died a short time later.

Johnson's automobile crashed into another machine driven by Vernon West, 35. The latter and his wife and a daughter, Alice Mary, and a sister-in-law, Opal Weaver, were seriously injured.

Mrs. Robert Johnson and her sister-in-law, Evelyn Nelson, passengers in Johnson's auto, also were critically hurt.

All of the injured were rushed to Dayton hospitals.

RIN TIN TIN DIES

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 11.—Rin Tin Tin, 14 years old, famous German police dog star of silent motion pictures, was dead today, on the eve of plans to feature him in a series of talking picures.

He died of old age at the home of his owner, Lee Duncan, who said that Rin Tin Tin, Jr., son of the famous old dog, would fill the screen roles planned for the original dog hero.

Rin Tin Tin was buried in the back yard of Duncan's home.

KILLS WIFE THEN TAKES OWN LIFE

ATHENS, Aug. 11.—Throwing downtown Athens into an uproar, Frank Robinson, 52, former convict, shot and killed his estranged wife and then committed suicide in a restaurant here today, police said.

Mrs. Ethel Robinson, 43, his wife, who was a waitress in the restaurant, had testified against him last year when he was placed on trial for shooting her father, Fred Laughlin, and the shooting today was for revenge, investigators believed.

Robinson and his wife formerly resided at Stewart, O., near here. Robinson was paroled a few months ago from the Ohio penitentiary.

NEW BONUS CAMP IS BEING FORMED

GETTYSBURG, Pa., Aug. 11 — Rumors that friends were underway to expand the bonus army outpost established here into a National encampment caused borough authorities no little concern today.

The "army" of more than 200 veterans who established themselves at the old national camp here gave no indication of returning to their homes as they prepared to "dig in" until Congress reconvenes late in the year.

SMITH DIVORCE

Hattie Smith of Fox Post Office, through her attorneys, Adkins and Adkins, has filed suit for divorce from Grover C. Smith, also of Fox P. O., in which she charges extreme cruelty.

The Smiths were married Nov. 13, 1913, and have no children but have adopted two of which she asks custody besides divorce and alimony.

JACKSON IN JAIL

M. J. 'Mississippi' Jackson, colored, was taken to the Ohio penitentiary at Columbus, Wednesday, where he began to serve a sentence of from one to seven years for receiving and concealing stolen property.

OHIO CROP VALUE UP THIS WEEK

Wheat 49 Cents in Many Sections of State; at 51 Here Today.

MARKET IS BOOSTED

Some Farmers Expect $1 Before Winter.

By International News Service

Riding the upturn of the market estimated wheat and corn crops in Ohio increased $3,710,000 in value during the past 10 days, a survey by International News Service showed today.

Although Buckeye State farmers faced the prospect that their crops would not equal the bumper yields of 1931, they were given the cheering reassurance that the general increase in commodity prices may in a measure bring back prosperity to the farm.

AT 51 CENTS HERE

The farm bureau quoted wheat at 51 cents in Pickaway-co today.

At present market values, the corn and wheat crop is worth $49,770,000. Ten days ago it would have brought only $46,060,00.

Farmers, with but few exceptions, are being offered 48 cents a bushel for wheat and there were some prospects that the price wave might bring the price up to 50 cents within the next few days.

49 AT KENTON

At Kenton, wheat hit its highest peak of the year as dealers there offered 49 cents a bushel for the product. In sharp contrast came reports in Fairfield-co that dealers were buying up wheat for prices less than 40 cents —The market price of wheat 10 days ago was 42 cents.

Many southern Ohio farmers, according to reports, are storing their wheat in barns, confidentally expecting $1-a-bushel wheat by the Christmas holidays.

M. R. Maney, manager of the grain department of the Ohio Farm bureau at Columbus, estimated that 30,000,000 bushels of which would be harvested in Ohio this year. Though below the bumper 50,000,000 bushel crop of last year, it still is above the five year average. Acreage sown was nine per cent less than last year and the latter fact also accounts for part of the decrease.

40 IN 1931

In 1931, on August 1, wheat sold for 40 cents a bushel.

Corn was less fortunate in its advances in the last 10 days but nevertheless it scored a gain. It was quoted at 27 cents a bushel, an increase of one cent over the price of 10 days ago but nevertheless a substantial gain when it is considered that 131,000,000 bushels will be taken from the stocks this year.

Just as farm bureau officials issued a statement yesterday saying that rain was needed in many sections of the state for the corn and potato crops, fortune smiled on the farmers and a slow, steady rain started falling.

RAIN WOULD AID

Maney declared that the slow steady rain would be more beneficial to the crops than a sharp, heavy storm. He said he had received no reports of any rain damage because of yesterday's showers.

The crop expert also said there was an unusually large acreage of soybeans in Ohio this year and "all reports indicate an unusually heavy yield of both beans and hay."

CONVICTS HUNTED

ZANESVILLE, Aug. 11.—All agencies of law and order in Muskingum and Perry-cos today were engaged in a desperate manhunt for Charles Aphey, Newark, patrolman slayer, who, with two other convicts, escaped from the Rosevill Brick Plant of the Ohio State Penitentiary yesterday.

A possee of 15 armed guards from the brick plant was further augmented today by sheriff's deputies and officers from villages in the two counties. Though the search was being pushed with equal determination in both counties, the three fleeing convicts are believed to have double-back on their tracks and to be hiding somewhere in southern Muskingum-co.

WM. DEWEY DIES

William Dewey, 73, of Jackson-twp, died at his home Thursday at 9:30 a. m. He was born March 3, 1859, the son of Lemuel Dewey and Adeline King Dewey.

Salt Lake City Beauty Described By Greenlee

EDITOR'S NOTE: This final letter written by Robert Greenlee while speeding eastward from probably the greatest vacation of his life may be published after he arrives in this city.

Sunday Night
Board Train

"Last night we crossed the state of Nevada. I did not get to see much of it but do not think I missed much. It is about all sand and hills. This morning while I was eating breakfast we were crossing the Great Salt Lake of Utah. It seemed rather queer to look out the window and see nothing but water almost as far as you could see. The railroad is built right across the lake on rocks and piling. It is 50 miles across.

"This afternoon we arrived at Ogden, Utah, a thriving little desert city. Here we stopped for half an hour and our gang raided the Curio shops, drug stores and hotels, getting their souveniers, cards, candy, sodas, cigarettes and suitcase stickers.

VISIT TABERNACLE

"Then we left and in about an hour arrived in Salt Lake City. We were taken from the station to the Mormon Tabernacle, where we listened to an organ recital for fifteen minutes. The organ is one of the world's largest. Its smallest pipe is five-eighths of an inch high while its largest is 32 feet long, so you can imagine the magnitude of its size.

"Salt Lake City is the most beautiful city I have ever seen. It might be called the "City of Churches." It has 26 denominations. Some denominations have nine or ten churches. It has many parks, one of which covers over 100 acres and has 1200 varieties of trees in it.

"Salt Lake City is situated in a big valley. When Brigham Young came there, there was but one tree in the valley. It was one vast desert. Young worked up a system of irrigation and after water had been supplied he built his city. Now is looks as if it has been built in a forest. The lawns look as if it rained every day. There are flower gardens half a mile long. I do not believe that Salt Lake City could be surpassed in beauty.

"It has a system of naming its streets so that you can not get lost in it if you can count and know your ABC's. It's population is approximately 150,000.

MORMON "OUT"

"The conception of the term Mormon is generally erroneous. A Mormon is really thought of as a Polygamist but only three percent of the Mormons ever practiced that doctrine. Now, that law prohibits it, it has become a thing of the past.

"Salt Lake City has many schools and boasts of its educational system. We went sightseeing through the city and then went swimming in an indoor warm water pool. Then we went back to our train and continued eastward.

"Probably this will be my last letter, because I will be home about Wednesday. I might say that I will be glad to get home but I certainly expect to go west as soon again as I can. When Circleville sent me West it lost a future citizen (whether desirable or otherwise) and Los Angeles gained one. After seeing many cities and various climates and geographical conditions I am assured that Los Angeles is the city that fulfills my conception of the "ideal."

"This evidently is the opinion of thousands of people, because although Los Angeles ranks fourth in population in the United States, it ranks first in size (area) in the world. You can see by this fact that people who go there to live, build homes, and settle down; while the people in New York and other cities live in tall tenement houses and apartment houses, never caring to own a home there and thus not building up the area of the city.

OFFERS GRATITUDE

"I must say that this has been the most delightful, enjoyable and educational factor of my life and I feel that I can never express the amount of gratitude I owe to the people of Circleville and Pickaway-co for making this trip possible."

Robert Greenlee.

EIGHTY-SEVEN

cery to the Hegele block, opposite the U. B. Church and operated a store here until 1892. Then for the next five years he was again associated with Mr. Helwagen.

For the next twenty two years he was the custodian of the High-st school and while there became a lover of the children and was loved by all who attended this school. These were happy days for Mr. Foerst for he could see the youngsters start in the first grade and watch them grow to manhood and womanhood and know that they had been given the best schooling of the time. Many of these boys and girls remember their first day at school and "Daddy" remembers these days just as well and rejoices in the memory.

SERVED AS BAILIFF

In 1919 "Daddy" was appointed Court Bailiff and served in this capacity until 1928.

Fraternally Mr. Foerst is a member of the Knights of Pythias and proudly claims this membership since 1882. He is the only remaining charter member of Groce Post 156 G. A. R., which was organized in 1880.

Mr. Foerst was married in 1868 to Margaret L. Kellstadt who passed away in 1895. Three children were born of this union, Harry, Charles and George. Harry died in infancy and Charles succumbed in 1927. In 1896 he was married to Margaret L. Courtright who died in 1922.

During all these years of experience "Daddy" remembers with pleasure the many happy days spent in Circleville and recalls the incidents that are now history.

He tells about the stage coach days; how people would speak of meeting the 6:15 coach as in later years they spoke of meeting the 6:15 train. He remembers clearly the stage coach headquarters at the Pickaway House, now the Boggs Hotel. It was here that they changed horses, for both north and south coaches.

RECALLS SHEEPSKIN

He recalls the first train coming into Circleville in 1852 and the big crowd that was there to see the biggest thing in the world, as it seemed to them. That was the old Sheepskin road, and named such because the builder didn't have money to pay workers who helped build it.

In his boyhood days there were not more than a dozen houses north of Hargus Creek nor south of the railroad.

When asked what he thought to be the greatest improvement or invention during the span of 87 years he remarked that the radio was the biggest thing to him. "People can ride in aeroplanes and do many other things but to bring the voice of people right into the home with no wires to carry it to you is the greatest thing I know of," he said.

"The many changes and improvements I have seen during my life are not so noticeable as they would be to a person who has been away from the city for years and returned. Being here all the time while these changes are taking place it comes as a matter of course and they are not so astonishing to me as they would be to a person who had not grown up with them," he remarked.

After all these years, "Daddy" Foerst enjoys his daily walk, his cigar, and is always ready to visit with friends at the home of his son, George, where he now makes his home.

What dance is eating away the moral fabric of the country today? Ten years ago it was the shimmy and a decade before that the grizzly bear, turkey trot and bunny hug.

been accumulating and studying the evidence in these complicated cases during the long period of time and that one of them at least is commonly supposed to be now ready for decision, it is your duty to continue to counsel and advise with the other members of the commission, until a definite decision is arrived at, and announced.

"I fully recognize your right to aspire to the elective office which you seek. It seems to me, however, that the great importance of these cases, which you propose to leave unfinished, constitutes a paramount claim upon your time as well as upon that of all those in public positions who are concerned in bringing them to a speedy termination.

Italians Threat In Boat Events

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 11 —An unheralded, swarthy, blackhaired Italian crew today had serve notice on the Olympic games that the sturdy sons of Mussolini must be reckoned with Saturday when the mightiest eight-oared combinations of the world go to their marks at the Long Beach stadium with the championship at stake.

The Italian combination stole the show from the University of California eight that represents the United States. The Italians sweeping past the favored eight of England, turned in the fastest time of the regatta for the 2,000-meter course, let loose a Fiscist cheer, raised their hands in salute, and then rowed gaily around fresh as the proverbial daisies.

U. S. PRESSED

The United States, pressed to the limit to win from Canada, in the second heat, was clocked in 6:29 against 6:28.2 for the tireless Italians.

Three water sports—swimming, rowing, and yachting—dominated the closing days of the games with boxing and the equestrian events close behind in popular interest.

The United States continued to add to its amazing unofficial total with 540 against 186 1-2 for Italy in second place. Other leaders were: Finland 133 1-2; France 126 1-2; Sweden 120; Germany 110.

New-crowned Olympic champions in swimming were:

Women's diving —Miss Georgia Coleman, U. S. A., 87:52 points.

400-meter free style, men—"Buster" Crabbe, U. S. A., 4:48.4 (New Olympic record.)

As one of the final ceremonies of the games, the largest massing of athletic power since the opening ceremony was held in the stadium Wednesday night when 3,000 men and women representing five nations gave a demonstration of sports new to the American public.

The Japanese captivated the crowd with native fencing, the object of which was to break balloons fixed to the heads of the contestants. The Czechoslovak and Jugo slav Sokols gave rythmic dancing and calisthenics, while the Mexicans presented an ancient Aztec Indian dance.

In yachting Wednesday, Gilbert Gray, New Orleans star, assured another title for the United States by bringing his sloop home third in another star class heat, giving him enough points to cinch victory.

'HORSE RACE' IN NATIONAL IS EXPECTED

Pirates, Braves, Dodgers, Cubs and Cards All Have Chance For Gonfalon

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—With indications that the slump of the Pirates is about over, a working race down the stretch in the National league was in prospect today. Brooklyn and St. Louis are climbing fast; the Cubs are only half a game behind the Pirates, and the Braves are holding well despite the loss of Red Worthington, their best hitter.

Heinie Meine checked Pittsburgh's losing streak of ten games yesterday when he turned back the Braves, 5 to 2, in the first of two games before 23,000 fans at Boston. Although homers by Berger and Schulmerich off French gave Boston a 3 to 2 decision in the nightcap, the Pirates got a well-pitched game for the fourth time in their last five starts.

Brooklyn two-timed the Reds, 6 to 1 and 10 to 9, and advanced to within four games of first place. Mungo's pitching and O'Doul's two homers featured the first game. In the nightcap, in which Hack Wilson belted his 19th homer and two singles, the Dodgers won in the thirteenth on an error by Grantham.

The Cardinals made it four straight over the Phillies, 11 to 5, when they knocked Flint Rhem, their old playmate, out of the box in the eleventh and scored six runs. Chuck Klein got his 33rd homer.

BIRDS DEFEATED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11.—The Columbus Red Birds, their eight game winning streak broken by a loss to Kansas City yesterday, were to start another onslaught for the American Association pennant against the Kaws this afternoon.

The score of yesterday's brawl was 11 to 2 in favor of the visitors. Columbus called on three pitchers, Fred Blake, Bob Osborne and Ken Ash but every one of their offerings seemed to be turned into a hit by the Kansas City batters, who collected 19 safeties in all.

Columbus is two full games behind the Minneapolis Millers and hold only a one-half game margin in second place. A loss today by Columbus and a win by Indianapolis, now in third place, would mean that the Birds would take a nose-dive toward the netherlands.

What a Man!

Here you are folks! A closeup of Jim Bausch, University of Kansas student and the world's greatest all around athlete. This picture was made as the decathlon champion rested between events at the Olympic Games. Bausch's performance surpassed all in the history of the games.

STRIBLING WINS

BRISBANE, Australia, Aug. 11. —William L. "Young" Stribling, of Atlanta, Ga., today had scored a technical knockout over Jack Renault, Canadian heavyweight.

Renault's seconds threw a towel into the ring in the fifth round after their man had become a chopping block for the superior American. His ear was nearly severed, and the ring was smeared with blood.

demonstrating that Pickaway-Co. has real movie talent as well as a modern newspaper.

OPENS AT HOME

The comedy opened showing the beautiful home of the Henpeck's, a mail man drops a letter in the box, rings the bell and the show was on.

Out to the porch mail box went Mr. Henpeck and there he found a letter addressed to him. He started to open it, but how dare he open his own. Mrs. Henpeck took it. The letter was from an old college chum of Mr. Henpeck's, which contained the information that the chum was sending his "baby" for Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck to care for for a time.

Mrs. Henpeck was delighted. while Mr. Henpeck had a vision of an orphanage full of babies climbing on his knees.

The upshot of the affair was that Mrs. Henpeck ordered her husband to obtain a baby-carriage, which he did. He pushed it along Court Street, and there, by mistake he exchanged it for another which contained a real baby of dark color. At the railroad station, Henpeck was delighted to find that the baby was not a baby after all, but quite grown. He walked away with her leaving the baby and baby carriage in care of the hero.

Meantime, the cub reporter, having been kicked out of the newspaper office by his managing editor and ordered to get a story or be fired, observed Mr. Henpeck when he met the baby and his suspicions were aroused.

CUB GETS HIS TIP

Mr. Henpeck suggested to the baby that before taking her home, he would show her the town and the cub reporter, observing this decision, went in haste to notify Mrs. Henpeck that "your husband is running all over town with another woman." This was good newspaper work: making one's own story.

Mrs. Henpeck started out in search of her husband, followed by Hero and Miss Crowe, the country flapper, on skates.

Then began a chase which led to many sections of Circleville, for as soon as Mr. Henpeck saw Mrs. Henpeck coming toward him, he grabbed baby's hand and away they ran. At one point, they stopped and jumped the whole width of Hargus Creek. Not to be outdone, Mrs. Henpeck and the pair following her, made the same jump.

There was a smash-up of automobiles at Court and Main Streets which provided the cub the real meat for his story.

Finally Mrs. Henpeck caught up and everything was explained.

The climax came when the cub gave the hero a "loaded" cigar which the hero promptly turned over to Mr. Henpeck, when he went to call on the baby.

The explosion caused another complication which played into the hands of the reporter, who won a bride.

At the end all are happy.

Pirates, Braves, Dodgers, Cubs and Cards All Have Chance For Gonfalon

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—With indications that the slump of the Pirates is about over, a working race down the stretch in the National league was in prospect today. Brooklyn and St. Louis are climbing fast; the Cubs are only half a game behind the Pirates, and the Braves are holding well despite the loss of Red Worthington, their best hitter.

Heinie Meine checked Pittsburgh's losing streak of ten games yesterday when he turned back the Braves, 5 to 2, in the first of two games before 23,000 fans at Boston. Although homers by Berger and Schulmerich off French gave Boston a 3 to 2 decision in the nightcap, the Pirates got a well-pitched game for the fourth time in their last five starts.

Brooklyn two-timed the Reds, 6 to 1 and 10 to 9, and advanced to within four games of first place. Mungo's pitching and O'Doul's two homers featured the first game. In the nightcap, in which Hack Wilson belted his 19th homer and two singles, the Dodgers won in the thirteenth on an error by Grantham.

The Cardinals made it four straight over the Phillies, 11 to 5, when they knocked Flint Rhem, their old playmate, out of the box in the eleventh and scored six runs. Chuck Klein got his 33rd homer.

BIRDS DEFEATED

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11.—The Columbus Red Birds, their eight game winning streak broken by a loss to Kansas City yesterday, were to start another onslaught for the American Association pennant against the Kaws this afternoon.

The score of yesterday's brawl was 11 to 2 in favor of the visitors. Columbus called on three pitchers, Fred Blake, Bob Osborne and Ken Ash but every one of their offerings seemed to be turned into a hit by the Kansas City batters, who collected 19 safeties in all.

Columbus is two full games behind the Minneapolis Millers and hold only a one-half game margin in second place. A loss today by Columbus and a win by Indianapolis, now in third place, would mean that the Birds would take a nose-dive toward the netherlands.

OPENS AT HOME

The comedy opened showing the beautiful home of the Henpeck's, a mail man drops a letter in the box, rings the bell and the show was on.

Out to the porch mail box went Mr. Henpeck and there he found a letter addressed to him. He started to open it, but how dare he open his own. Mrs Henpeck took it. The letter was from an old college chum of Mr. Henpeck's, which contained the information that the chum was sending his "baby" for Mr. and Mrs. Henpeck to care for for a time.

Mrs. Henpeck was delighted. while Mr. Henpeck had a vision of an orphanage full of babies climbing on his knees.

The upshot of the affair was that Mrs Henpeck ordered her husband to obtain a baby-carriage, which he did. He pushed it along Court Street and there, by mistake he exchanged it for another which contained a real baby of dark color. At the railroad station, Henpeck was delighted to find that the baby was not a baby after all, but quite grown He walked away with her leaving the baby and baby carriage in care of the hero

Meantime, the cub reporter, having been kicked out of the newspaper office by his managing editor and ordered to get a story or be fired, observed Mr Henpeck when he met the baby and his suspicions were aroused.

CUB GETS HIS TIP

Mr Henpeck suggested to the baby that before taking her home, he would show her the town and the cub reporter, observing this decision, went in haste to notify Mrs. Henpeck that "your husband is running all over town with another woman." This was good newspaper work, making one's own story

Mrs Henpeck started out in search of her husband, followed by Hero and Miss Crowe, the country flapper, on skates.

Then began a chase which led to many sections of Circleville, for as soon as Mr. Henpeck saw Mrs Henpeck coming toward him, he grabbed baby's hand and away they ran At one point, they stopped and jumped the whole width of Hargus Creek Not to be outdone Mrs Henpeck and the pair following her, made the same jump

There was a smash-up of automobiles at Court and Main Streets which provided the cub the real meat for his story

Finally Mrs Henpeck caught up and everything was explained

The climax came when the cub gave the hero a "loaded" cigar which the hero promptly turned over to Mr Henpeck, when he went to call on the baby.

The explosion caused another commotion which played into the hands of the reporter who won a bride.

Salt Lake City Beauty Described By Greenlee

EDITOR'S NOTE: This final letter written by Robert Greenlee while speeding eastward from probably the greatest vacation of his life may be published after he arrives in this city.

Sunday Night
Board Train

"Last night we crossed the state of Nevada. I did not get to see much of it but do not think I missed much. It is about all sand and hills. This morning while I was eating breakfast we were crossing the Great Salt Lake of Utah. It seemed rather queer to look out the window and see nothing but water almost as far as you could see. The railroad is built right across the lake on rocks and piling. It is 50 miles across.

"This afternoon we arrived at Ogden, Utah, a thriving little desert city. Here we stopped for half an hour and our gang raided the Curio shops, drug stores and hotels, getting their souveniers, cards, candy, sodas, cigarettes and suitcase stickers.

VISIT TABERNACLE

"Then we left and in about an hour arrived in Salt Lake City. We were taken from the station to the Mormon Tabernacle, where we listened to an organ recital for fifteen minutes. The organ is one of the world's largest. Its smallest pipe is five-eighths of an inch high while its largest is 32 feet long, so you can imagine the magnitude of its size.

"Salt Lake City is the most beautiful city I have ever seen. It might be called the "City of Churches." It has 26 denominations. Some denominations have nine or ten churches. It has many parks, one of which covers over 100 acres and has 1200 varieties of trees in it.

"Salt Lake City is situated in a big valley. When Brigham Young came there, there was but one tree in the valley. It was one vast desert. Young worked up a system of irrigation and after water had been supplied he built his city. Now is looks as if it has been built in a forest. The lawns look as if it rained every day. There are flower gardens half a mile long. I do not believe that Salt Lake City could be surpassed in beauty.

"It has a system of naming its streets so that you can not get lost in it if you can count and know your ABC's. It's population is approximately 150,000.

MORMON "OUT"

"The conception of the term Mormon is generally erroneous. A Mormon is really thought of as a Polygamist but only three percent of the Mormons ever practiced that doctrine. Now, that law prohibits it, it has become a thing of the past.

"Salt Lake City has many schools and boasts of its educational system. We went sightseeing through the city and then went swimming in an indoor warm water pool. Then we went back to our train and continued eastward.

"Probably this will be my last letter, because I will be home about Wednesday. I might say that I will be glad to get home but I certainly expect to go west as soon again as I can. When Circleville sent me West it lost a future citizen (whether desirable or otherwise) and Los Angeles gained one. After seeing many cities and various climates and geographical conditions I am assured that Los Angeles is the city that fulfills my conception of the "ideal."

"This evidently is the opinion of thousands of people, because although Los Angeles ranks fourth in population in the United States, it ranks first in size (area) in the world. You can see by this fact that people who go there to live, build homes, and settle down; while the people in New York and other cities live in tall tenement houses and apartment houses, never caring to own a home there and thus not building up the area of the city.

OFFERS GRATITUDE

"I must say that this has been the most delightful, enjoyable and educational factor of my life and I feel that I can never express the amount of gratitude I owe to the people of Circleville and Pickaway-co for making this trip possible."

Robert Greenlee.

EIGHTY-SEVEN

cery to the Hegele block, opposite the U. B. Church and operated a store here until 1892. Then for the next five years he was again associated with Mr. Helwagen.

For the next twenty two years he was the custodian of the High-st school and while there became a lover of the children and was loved by all who attended this school. These were happy days for Mr. Foerst for he could see the youngsters start in the first grade and watch them grow to manhood and womanhood and know that they had been given the best schooling of the time. Many of these boys and girls remember their first day at school and "Daddy" remembers these days just as well and rejoices in the memory.

SERVED AS BAILIFF

In 1919 "Daddy" was appointed Court Bailiff and served in this capacity until 1928.

Fraternally Mr. Foerst is a member of the Knights of Pythias and proudly claims this membership since 1882. He is the only remaining charter member of Groce Post 156 G. A. R., which was organized in 1880.

Mr. Foerst was married in 1868 to Margaret L. Kellstadt who passed away in 1895. Three children were born of this union, Harry, Charles and George. Harry died in infancy and Charles succumbed in 1927. In 1896 he was married to Margaret L. Courtright who died in 1922.

During all these years of experience "Daddy" remembers with pleasure the many happy days spent in Circleville and recalls the incidents that are now history.

He tells about the stage coach days; how people would speak of meeting the 6:15 coach as in later years they spoke of meeting the 6:15 train. He remembers clearly the stage coach headquarters at the Pickaway House, now the Boggs Hotel. It was here that they changed horses, for both north and south coaches.

RECALLS SHEEPSKIN

He recalls the first train coming into Circleville in 1852 and the big crowd that was there to see the biggest thing in the world, as it seemed to them. That was the old Sheepskin road, and named such because the builder didn't have money to pay workers who helped build it.

In his boyhood days there were not more than a dozen houses north of Hargus Creek nor south of the railroad.

When asked what he thought to be the greatest improvement or invention during the span of 87 years he remarked that the radio was the biggest thing to him. "People can ride in aeroplanes and do many other things but to bring the voice of people right into the home with no wires to carry it to you is the greatest thing I know of," he said.

"The many changes and improvements I have seen during my life are not so noticeable as they would be to a person who has been away from the city for years and returned. Being here all the time while these changes are taking place it comes as a matter of course and they are not so astonishing to me as they would be to a person who had not grown up with them," he remarked.

After all these years, "Daddy" Foerst enjoys his daily walk, his cigar, and is always ready to visit with friends at the home of his son, George, where he now makes his home.

What dance is eating away the moral fabric of the country today? Ten years ago it was the shimmy and a decade before that the grizzly bear, turkey trot and bunny hug.

RESIGNATION

been accumulating and studying the evidence in these complicated cases during the long period of time and that one of them at least is commonly supposed to be now ready for decision, it is your duty to continue to counsel and advise with the other members of the commission, until a definite decision is arrived at, and announced.

"I fully recognize your right to aspire to the elective office which you seek. It seems to me, however, that the great importance of these cases, which you propose to leave unfinished, constitutes a paramount claim upon your time as well as upon that of all those in public positions who are concerned in bringing them to a speedy termination.

"For the foregoing reasons therefore, I must respectfully request that you continue as a member of the public utilities commission until you have cleared your desk."

Perhaps baseball clubs take their names from hosiery because there are runs in both.

If you must reduce, try being a dejected lover.

Up From the Bottom

FOR 30 months it required no little courage and a great deal of optimism to predict that business was on the upgrade and prosperity just around the corner, and when these hopeful and daring prophecies proved premature, to say the least, their authors were made to feel exceedingly embrassed.

Even now, after such a long series of disappointment, it requires courage to predict prosperity and plenty for all in the offing, although the present offers more upon which to base such a pleasant prophecy than any period since 1929.

There is the stock market shooting skyward at a dizzy pace and to the dismay of the multitude of big and little speculators who are still waiting for it to hit bottom. The domestic gold supply has been increasing $11,000,000 a week. Commodity prices have executed an about-face and are boosting the cost of living for the time being. At least one large railroad has recaptured enough of its old confidence to guarantee its regular men full time employment.

Industrially, conditions are spotty. Some of the more important industrial centers have been calling thousands back to work, while discouraging reports come from nowhere. The same is true of the commercial situation.

At this moment the depression finds the country prepared for the worst but expecting something better. President Green, of the American Federation of Labor, is the last of the pessimists, and even he admits the possibility of better things.

Lamont's New Job

SECRETARY Robert P. Lamont quit the department of commerce to go home to the steel industry for as the active head of the American Iron and Steel Institute he is restored to the industry which fathered him as President of the American Steel Foundries for many years prior to his entrance into public life.

For having been in public life he will be more useful to the insitute and industry. Of particular value at this time is an understanding within big business of the attitude of the government and public toward big business, and that understanding he must have acquired through his association with federal government in its inner circle.

The iron and steel industry did not establish its institute for the purpose of evading the Sherman anti-trust law. The institute has proved itself useful to both producer and consumer of iron and steel products without resort to price-fixing or other unfair practices. And with the industry operating at less than 15 per cent of capacity at present there is a large field for its activities in the direction of stablization and as the recognized leader of American industry.

Former Secretary Lamont can perform as genuinely public service as head of the institute as he was rendering as secretary of commerce, just as other men, snatched from public life by big business have continued serving the nation.

Idle Money

BANKING bids to the extent of $5,000,000,000 in response to the federal treasury's offer of $650,000,000 in notes bearing 3 1-2 and 2 1-2 per cent interest are convincing evidence that the country is financially sound, that credit resources are ample, and that as a nation we are ready to go ahead with business once confidence is re-established.

Money is cheap and plentiful where the lender has confidence in the borrower's ability to pay on short notice. If the bankers could recover their confidence in business there would be more than ample credit for business, which is stagnant now largely because of inadequate working capital.

Business may have to draw capital from private sources and prove its ability to meet new obligations before the banks reopen their vaults and close their minds to such ugly eventualities as bank runs and panics. Pioneers are seldom found in banks, and for very good reason.

There will come a time when a successful business man can again go to his bank and borrow on reasonable security for expansion purposes, and that time may not be as far off as most people fear.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

By HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT 1931 BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

Lily Lou stood, shivering slightly, while they sewed her into the pale blue and brown peasant dress in which she was to sing Micaela. It had been made for a larger woman. It was the wrong color. She twitched and jerked at it, in a futile effort to make it hang better.

"It does very well," Madame Nahlman said, after a hasty glance, returning to the mirror to finish beading her eyelashes.

"But the wig is impossible. I can't wear it. They haven't a decent one."

"Then go without one. Wear a shawl over your head. The French don't expect grand costumes, anyway. It's the singing that matters, over here."

"It's the singing that matters . . ." Lily Lou went to stand in the wings, turning it over in her mind, moving every minute or two, to get out of someone's way. There was confusion, excitement, sharp argument, then a sudden hush. The curtain had gone up.

Before she realized it, it was time for her to go on. No time to be frightened. When the moment for her song approached she felt no fear, no emotion of any kind. She sang, and knew that she sang well. The tenor was delighted. "A pleasure to sing with such a Micaela," he said, gallantly.

And then—for the first time—she was frightened. She had gotten through the first act. But how in the world could she get through the rest? Her knees were jelly. Her throat felt as though it were stuffed with cotton wool.

She wished she did not have to wait until the third act to go on. It was such a long time to wait. She should have come to the theater later. That would have given her time to wait until the doctor got there to see the baby.

His little head was hot . . . but Bess always said that children's fevers didn't amount to anything . . the bubchen was well, but he wasn't as strong as Bess' children. . . .

Measles can be very serious . . . a child can be left with terrible things, if he isn't properly taken care of. . . .

If she weren't made up she could get a taxi and slip home and still be back in time . . . No she couldn't . . not at this hour . . . Well, the baby was all right . . . She'd just have to wait. . . .

Nahlman, glowing with excitement, exuding triumph from every pore, stopped to embrace her just before the third act.

"Dear Lily, you are so beautiful! A little thin for the tradition, but lovely! If you do just half as well as in the first act they will adore you . . . you are not nervous?"

"No—not really—just—"

"Of course, not. I must go. I depend on you Lily, for my great performance. I could not sing with that squealing Dejere. Remember—I depend on you—for my big scene—my triumph—"

Lily Lou was alone again. She stood, waiting for her cue. Nervous? She didn't know whether she was or not. She wanted the chance . . . She was determined to succeed . . . Her hands were frightfully cold, and her face was hot . . . maybe she was getting the measles, too! She stifled a nervous giggle. . . .

Mustn't think of the baby . . . To let that step her now! Suppose that she got out on the stage and opened her mouth and no sound came out . . . It was too bad about Dejere's ankle . . . Her own ankle hurt so much, that time she sprained it in Woodlake and Ken held her in his arms and kissed her . . .

Nahlman was finishing "Voyons que j'essaie"—telling her fortune . . . almost time for her own "Pe dis que rien ne m'epouvante—"

It would soon be over now . . . Then she could rush home to the bubchen . . . .

To think of that now! The baby and Ken . . . something that was all over . . . Of course the baby wasn't all over, he was just beginning, but he was too small to need her very much. If he was to need her, it would be in a financial way So the way to help him was to succeed. Make something of herself. Put herself in the great artist class, above criticism, above gossip . . . if anyone ever got above gossip . . . To be thinking of that, now . . . here, in the wings . . .

The stage was emptying, the chorus men in their costumes of gypsy smugglers, were coming back into the wings, and it was time for her . . . time for her . . .

The footlights leapt at her. She came towards them, down the board walk, behind the papier-mache rocks . . .

There was a ripple of applause. It was because she was pretty, of course. They'd as likely hiss her in a minute, her throat felt so wooly . .

"I try not to own that I tremble,
But I know I'm a coward, altho' bold I appear.

Ah! how can I ever call up my courage,
While horror and dread chill my sad heart with fear?"

How appropriate the words were . . . the thought, singing in the French that seemed almost as natural as English now . . .

Did her voice sound small? She couldn't be sure. But it was true, oh, thank Heaven, true . . .

"Success!" Nahlman whispered thrillingly, in her ear — "Perfect!" Now, more pleading, less fearful in the next scene with Jose and me—"

Lily Lou was afire with excitement.

This was her big chance . . . she was making the most of it. She was impatient to get back on the stage, for her scene with Nahlman and the French tenor . . .

His breath smelled of onions . . . He always ate green onions in the wings, waiting his cues . . what a funny habit! How funny that she wasn't frightened now, that her voice went right on, sure and perfect as if she were just turning on a phonograph record . . .

Applause . . . Nahlman had taken her hand, the tenor had her other hand. They were bringing her out before the curtain . . She felt herself bowing, smiling . . . listening to the thunder of applause, not for her of course, for Nahlman, but still she was part of it . . .

The tenor kissed her. Nahlman kissed her. The conductor, a bright-eyed little man with loose, moist lips, kissed her.

"But she is perfect! Like a bird! She must be starred!" he cried, kissing her again.

"Didn't I tell you?" Nahlman shouted. "Didn't I say she was my pupil? But no, you would have that tin whistle, Dejere. Next time you will listen to me—eh?"

"Next time! Forever!"

"Madame—s'il vous plait—" It was the wardrobe mistress, with Susanne Coin. Something about Nahlman's gorgeous silver and lace costume for the last act . . .

"A rip in the armhole! And you stand like dummies looking at me. And my great last act, to be ruined by an armhole! Susanne—clear my room — Lily, why do you let me shout? My strength—"

Lily Lou, still starry-eyed, still a little tremulous, turned to follow the three excited women. Her little part was over. She must help Nahlman with the costume . . .

"Farewell, my angel, until the close of the performance," the conductor whispered.

And he kissed her again.

Without resentment Lily Lou wiped off Blumenthal's kiss. She had no illusions about him. She knew that she was marked to succeed Mademoiselle Dejere, not only as Micaela in Carmen, but in Blumenthal's plans. Oh well! What's a kiss? Nahlman would help her. She knew how to handle these men.

The armhole in the silver and lace dress was fixed Nahlman was happy. Melting with love for triumphant Lily Lou. Exuberant over her own overwhelming success.

"Now you're started there'll be no stopping you," she rattled on to Lily Lou, while Susanne painstakingly arranged the folds of the skirt, crawling on her knees on the none too clean floor.

"You'll never make the dramatic success that I do. You're not the type. But you can't expect that. Only one artist in a generation does that. But with your looks, and your perfect coloratura - if you take care of it - you'll win. Gilda should be the next part. The Paris Opera will be open all summer for the tourists. I, with my influence can arrange for your Gilda, perhaps another role also. t may stay to do some big roles myself. Maybe Aida . you have never heard my Aida. You will hear them stand and shout then But Italy is the place they appreciate you . . Dresden. The blessed Dresden Opera . some of my greatest triumphs—in the Ring—my Elsa Susanne, you cow! You'll pull off my skirt . Now . . . do I look my best, Lily? For my big last act? My hair . Susanne, look at the skirt . Now leave me I am Carmen again—"

Oh, the thrill! To stand in the wings, to feel herself part of this great production. To be part of the festivities afterward. To be presented to other artists, critics, musicians, to have the important Blumenthal, rake that he was singing her praises, trying to get her alone

Madame Nahlman put her warm arms about her. "Dear Lily, my good friend. Do not let your head be turned. No man . . understand me . . . no man is worth it . . "

Lily Lou wanted to laugh, but she felt abashed. As if any man, Blumenthal, or any other, mattered to her, except as he could further her career.

"And now, my child, go home. You are tired. Your first night. You must rest. I will make your excuses. That is wise?"

"Yes—I'll call a taxi. I am tired," Lily said. But she did not want to go. It would have been fun to have had supper with Nahlman, and the others . . . even with Blumenthal .

She wondered what the papers would say of her . . . the conservative French press . . . Perhaps they wouldn't say anything . . Micaela was such a small part, still she had made the most of it . . . she knew that . . .

Creaking home in the taxi she began to sing softly . . . not the part she had just sung . . . Carmen's aria . . . She'd sing that, too, some day . . . though it was a bit low for her . . .

Gilda . . . that was all right to start with. She'd do it at the opera here, and be acclaimed for her perfection, then something more dramatic, more appealing . . . Mignon . . . Butterfly . . . even Marguerite, and Lucia would be better than Gilda, and as Violetta in Traviata. . .

The Daily Horoscope

Thursday, August 11, 1932

Today is set by a western Astrologer for the ending of the third and last wave of the world's great depression. It is commonly understood by some of the seers that depressions come and go in wave-like motion; for example, the second wave of the depression ended February the 24th and immediately following the ending of this wave, bank failures were practically ended for a number of weeks, many thousands of school teachers were paid back salary. The legion gave over 600,000 men and women temporary employment; building figures indicated seasonable increase over the previous two months, many thousands returned to work, including over 3,000 employes hired to work on Chicago World's Fair buildings; six large Alabama mills were temporarily opened. etc. Because of the oncoming third and last wave of the depression, many banks began to fail and thousands have been recently layed off. We have now approached the end of the last wave of the depression, which is due on the eleventh day of August, 1932, at which time Jupiter and Neptune will have reached the Virgo sign that is to bring collossal benefits to the laboring class this year and most of the year to follow.

Success is promised to those in high places in the shipping and transportation lines of the Eastern states. Important questions will come up bearing upon postal affairs, inland and river travel.

The western part of the country along the Pacific Ocean may pass some new regulations to the satisfaction of the commissioner and the farmer. Crops should be unusually fine and ready for shipment.

A splendid day for the salesman to present new propositions, progressive features in business and meeting new customers.

People born between the 11th to the 16th of April, August and December and February should be favored with many advantages today. Children born on this day are likely to come into prominence Many favors will be granted to them.

Robert G. Ingersoll, celebrated lawyer, was born on this day, 1833. Among others who celebrated it as a birthday include Marie Francis Sadi Carnot, 1837, once president of France.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Novelty rules this season's pictures and here is one of the most unusual of them all.

What is said to be one of the most interesting and novel screen plays of the current season has been booked for the Grand Theatre, according to an announcement yesterday by Manager Baughman.

The picture is "Tom Brown at Culver," the Universal production which presents Tom Brown and Slim Summerville in the leading roles, and was filmed partly at Universal City and partly at the famous Culver Military Academy in Indiana. The entire story is told against the background of this well known institution, and is said to tell a most dramatic story of a boy whose father was erroneously credited with being a hero of the World War.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The first political picture of our hectic political annum is due here soon.

In a General Election year, with primaries, conventions and elections spotting the nation, with candidates from pound-keeper to president engaging the voters "The Dark Horse," a First National picture which comes to the Cliftona Theatre Friday and Saturday, affords a most timely glimpse of behind the scenes activities of political leaders

Advance reports reaching the management of the Cliftona put "The Dark Horse" in the running as one of the standard screen offerings of the year. Aside from its timeliness the picture apparently is an authentic story of political manipulation, highlighted by comedy and melodramatic action in which Warren William, the sensation of "The Mouthpiece," plays the role of a "maker of men."

EXCURSIONS POPULAR

WASHINGTON —In 17 ports, not including New York, in which the Commerce Department's Bureau of Navigation maintains inspectors for the protection of excursion crowds, 494,203 persons took excursion trips in June, according to Commissioner Arthur J Tyrer of the Bureau.

COLLEGIAN TURNS HERMIT

BLOOMINGTON ILL.—A hermit George Case, 54, graduate of a technical college, has been discovered living in a small cave along Sugar Creek, two miles from here Case declared he had gone into seclusion because he had been cheated out of a large sum of money and was "fed up" on civilization.

Reduced 30 Pounds Never Felt Better

Safe Way To Lose Fat.

Take the case of Miss Madelone Crowley, for instance, who lives in Little Rock, Ark. Just read her letter:

"I have used Kruschen Salts for one year--when I started I weighed 140 pounds—now I weigh 110 pounds and never felt better in my life."

That's the big reason a host of men and women take Kruschen to lose weight—as the fat goes you gain in health—skin clears—eyes grow bright—activity replaces indolence.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a jar of Kruschen that costs but a trifle lasts 4 weeks—get it at any drugstore in the world—but for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts. —Adv.

Il Duce claims he complimented Grandi by succeeding him as foreign minister. On the theory, no doubt, that Il Duce needed the salary more than Grandi.

"EMBERS OF LOVE"

CHAPTER FORTY-FOUR

Lily Lou stood, shivering slightly, while they sewed her into the pale blue and brown peasant dress in which she was to sing Micaela. It had been made for a larger woman. It was the wrong color. She twitched and jerked at it, in a futile effort to make it hang better.

"It does very well," Madame Nahlman said, after a hasty glance, returning to the mirror to finish beading her eyelashes.

"But the wig is impossible. I can't wear it. They haven't a decent one."

"Then go without one. Wear a shawl over your head. The French don't expect grand costumes, anyway. It's the singing that matters, over here."

"It's the singing that matters . . ." Lily Lou went to stand in the wings, turning it over in her mind, moving every minute or two, to get out of someone's way. There was confusion, excitement, sharp argument, then a sudden hush. The curtain had gone up.

Before she realized it, it was time for her to go on. No time to be frightened. When the moment for her song approached she felt no fear, no emotion of any kind. She sang, and knew that she sang well. The tenor was delighted. "A pleasure to sing with such a Micaela," he said, gallantly.

And then—for the first time—she was frightened. She had gotten through the first act. But how in the world could she get through the rest? Her knees were jelly. Her throat felt as though it were stuffed with cotton wool.

She wished she did not have to wait until the third act to go on. It was such a long time to wait. She should have come to the theater later. That would have given her time to wait until the doctor got there to see the baby.

His little head was hot . . . but Bess always said that children's fevers didn't amount to anything . . . the bubchen was well, but he wasn't as strong as Bess' children. . . .

Measles can be very serious . . . a child can be left with terrible things, if he isn't properly taken care of. . . .

If she weren't made up she could get a taxi and slip home and still be back in time . . . No she couldn't . . . not at this hour . . . Well, the baby was all right . . . She'd just have to wait. . . .

Nahlman, glowing with excitement, exuding triumph from every pore, stopped to embrace her just before the third act.

"Dear Lily, you are so beautiful! A little thin for the tradition, but lovely! If you do just half as well as in the first act they will adore you . . . you are not nervous?"

"No—not really—just—"

"Of course, not. I must go. I depend on you Lily, for my great performance. I could not sing with that squealing Dejere. Remember—I depend on you—for my big scene—my triumph—"

Lily Lou was alone again. She stood, waiting for her cue. Nervous? She didn't know whether she was or not. She wanted the chance . . . She was determined to succeed . . . Her hands were frightfully cold, and her face was hot . . . maybe she was getting the measles, too! She stifled a nervous giggle. . . .

Mustn't think of the baby . . . To let that stop her now! Suppose that she got out on the stage and opened her mouth and no sound came out . . . It was too bad about Dejere's ankle . . . Her own ankle hurt so much, that time she sprained it in Woodlake and Ken held her in his arms and kissed her . . .

Nahlman was finishing "Voyons que j'essaie"—telling her fortune . . . almost time for her own "Pe dis que rien ne m'epouvante—"

It would soon be over now . . . Then she could rush home to the bubchen . . . .

To think of that now! The baby and Ken . . . something that was all over . . . Of course the baby wasn't all over, he was just beginning, but he was too small to need her very much. If he was to need her, it would be in a financial way So the way to help him was to succeed. Make something of herself. Put herself in the great artist class, above criticism, above gossip . . . if anyone ever got above gossip . . . To be thinking of that, now . . . here, in the wings . . .

The stage was emptying, the chorus men in their costumes of gypsy smugglers, were coming back into the wings, and it was time for her . . . time for her . . .

The footlights leapt at her. She came towards them, down the board walk, behind the papier-mache rocks . . .

There was a ripple of applause. It was because she was pretty, of course. They'd as likely hiss her in a minute, her throat felt so wooly . . .

"I try not to own that I tremble,
But I know I'm a coward, altho' bold I appear.
Ah! how can I ever call up my courage,
While horror and dread chill my sad heart with fear?"

How appropriate the words were . . . the thought, singing in the French that seemed almost as natural as English now . . .

Did her voice sound small? She couldn't be sure. But it was true, oh, thank Heaven, true . . .

"Success!" Nahlman whispered thrillingly, in her ear — 'Perfect!' Now, more pleading, less fearful in the next scene with Jose and me—"

Lily Lou was afire with excitement.

This was her big chance . . . she was making the most of it. She was impatient to get back on the stage, for her scene with Nahlman and the French tenor . . .

His breath smelled of onions . . . He always ate green onions in the wings, waiting his cues . . what a funny habit! How funny that she wasn't frightened now, that her voice went right on, sure and perfect as if she were just turning on a phonograph record . . .

Applause . . . Nahlman had taken her hand, the tenor had her other hand. They were bringing her out before the curtain . . . She felt herself bowing, smiling . . . listening to the thunder of applause, not for her of course, for Nahlman, but still she was part of it . . .

The tenor kissed her. Nahlman kissed her. The conductor, a bright-eyed little man with loose, moist lips, kissed her.

"But she is perfect! Like a bird! She must be starred!" he cried, kissing her again.

"Didn't I tell you?" Nahlman shouted. "Didn't I say she was my pupil? But no, you would have that tin whistle, Dejere. Next time you will listen to me—eh?"

"Next time! Forever!"

"Madame—s'il vous plait—" It was the wardrobe mistress, with Susanne Coin. Something about Nahlman's gorgeous silver and lace costume for the last act . . .

"A rip in the armhole! And you stand like dummies looking at me. And my great last act, to be ruined by an armhole! Susanne—clear my room — Lily, why do you let me shout? My strength—"

Lily Lou, still starry-eyed, still a little tremulous, turned to follow the three excited women. Her little part was over. She must help Nahlman with the costume . . .

"Farewell, my angel, until the close of the performance," the conductor whispered.

And he kissed her again.

Without resentment Lily Lou wiped off Blumenthal's kiss. She had no illusions about him. She knew that she was marked to succeed Mademoiselle Dejere, not only as Micaela in Carmen, but in Blumenthal's plans. Oh well! What's a kiss? Nahlman would help her. She knew how to handle these men.

The armhole in the silver and lace dress was fixed. Nahlman was happy. Melting with love for triumphant Lily Lou. Exuberant over her own overwhelming success.

"Now you're started there'll be no stopping you," she rattled on to Lily Lou, while Susanne painstakingly arranged the folds of the skirt, crawling on her knees on the none too clean floor.

"You'll never make the dramatic success that I do. You're not the type. But you can't expect that. Only one artist in a generation does that. But with your looks, and your perfect coloratura - if you take care of it — you'll win. Gilda should be the next part. The Paris Opera will be open all summer-for the tourists. I, with my influence can arrange for your Gilda, perhaps another role also. I may stay to do some big roles myself. Maybe Aida . . you have never heard my Aida. You will hear them stand and shout then But Italy is the place they appreciate you . . . Dresden. The blessed Dresden Opera . some of my greatest triumphs—in the Ring—my Elsa Susanne, you cow! You'll pull off my skirt . . Now . . . do I look my best, Lily? For my big last act? My hair . . Susanne, look at the skirt . . . Now leave me I am Carmen again—"

Oh, the thrill! To stand in the wings, to feel herself part of this great production. To be part of the festivities afterward. To be presented to other artists, critics, musicians, to have the important Blumenthal, rake that he was singing her praises, trying to get her alone.

Madame Nahlman put her warm arms about her. "Dear Lily, my good friend. Do not let your head be turned. No man . . . understand me . . . no man is worth it . . ."

Lily Lou wanted to laugh, but she felt abashed. As if any man, Blumenthal, or any other, mattered to her, except as he could further her career.

"And now, my child, go home. You are tired. Your first night. You must rest. I will make your excuses. That is wise?"

"Yes—I'll call a taxi. I am tired," Lily said. But she did not want to go. It would have been fun to have had supper with Nahlman, and the others . . . even with Blumenthal . .

She wondered what the papers would say of her . . . the conservative French press . . . Perhaps they wouldn't say anything . . Micaela was such a small part, still she had made the most of it . . . she knew that . . .

Creaking home in the taxi she began to sing softly . . . not the part she had just sung . . . Carmen's aria . . . She'd sing that, too, some day . . . though it was a bit low for her . . .

Gilda . . . that was all right to start with. She'd do it at the opera here, and be acclaimed for her perfection, then something more dramatic, more appealing . . . Mignon . . . Butterfly . . . even Marguerite, and Lucia would be better than Gilda, and as Violetta in Traviata. . . .

The Daily Horoscope

Thursday, August 11, 1932

Today is set by a western Astrologer for the ending of the third and last wave of the world's great depression. It is commonly understood by some of the seers that depressions come and go in wave-like motion; for example, the second wave of the depression ended February the 24th and immediately following the ending of this wave, bank failures were practically ended for a number of weeks; many thousands of school teachers were paid back salary. The legion gave over 600,000 men and women temporary employment; building figures indicated seasonable increase over the previous two months; many thousands returned to work, including over 3,000 employes hired to work on Chicago World's Fair buildings; six large Alabama mills were temporarily opened, etc. Because of the oncoming third and last wave of the depression, many banks began to fail and thousands have been recently layed off. We have now approached the end of the last wave of the depression, which is due on the eleventh day of August, 1932, at which time Jupiter and Neptune will have reached the Virgo sign that is to bring collossal benefits to the laboring class this year and most of the year to follow.

Success is promised to those in high places in the shipping and transportation lines of the Eastern states. Important questions will come up bearing upon postal affairs, inland and river travel.

The western part of the country along the Pacific Ocean may pass some new regulations to the satisfaction of the commissioner and the farmer. Crops should be unusually fine and ready for shipment.

A splendid day for the salesman to present new propositions, progressive features in business and meeting new customers.

People born between the 11th to the 16th of April, August and December and February should be favored with many advantages today. Children born on this day are likely to come into prominence. Many favors will be granted to them.

Robert G. Ingersoll, celebrated lawyer, was born on this day, 1833. Among others who celebrated it as a birthday include Marie Francis Sadi Carnot, 1837, once president of France.

Theatres

AT THE GRAND

Novelty rules this season's pictures and here is one of the most unusual of them all.

What is said to be one of the most interesting and novel screen plays of the current season has been booked for the Grand Theatre, according to an announcement yesterday by Manager Baughman.

The picture is "Tom Brown at Culver," the Universal production which presents Tom Brown and Slim Summerville in the leading roles, and was filmed partly at Universal City and partly at the famous Culver Military Academy in Indiana. The entire story is told against the background of this well known institution, and is said to tell a most dramatic story of a boy whose father was erroneously credited with being a hero of the World War.

AT THE CLIFTONA

The first political picture of our hectic political annum is due here soon.

In a General Election year, with primaries, conventions and elections spotting the nation; with candidates from pound-keeper to president engaging the voters. "The Dark Horse," a First National picture which comes to the Cliftona Theatre Friday and Saturday, affords a most timely glimpse of behind the scenes activities of political leaders.

Advance reports reaching the management of the Cliftona put "The Dark Horse" in the running as one of the standard screen offerings of the year. Aside from its timeliness, the picture apparently is an authentic story of political manipulation, highlighted by comedy and melodramatic action in which Warren William, the sensation of "The Mouthpiece," plays the role of a "maker of men."

EXCURSIONS POPULAR

WASHINGTON.—In 17 ports, not including New York, in which the Commerce Department's Bureau of Navigation maintains inspectors for the protection of excursion crowds, 494,203 persons took excursion trips in June, according to Commissioner Arthur J. Tyrer of the Bureau.

COLLEGIAN TURNS HERMIT

BLOOMINGTON, ILL.—A hermit, George Case, 54, graduate of a technical college, has been discovered living in a small cave along Sugar Creek, two miles from here. Case declared he had gone into seclusion because he had been cheated out of a large sum of money and was "fed up" on civilization.

Reduced 30 Pounds Never Felt Better

Safe Way To Lose Fat.

Take the case of Miss Madelone Crowley, for instance, who lives in Little Rock, Ark. Just read her letter:

"I have used Kruschen Salts for one year--when I started I weighed 140 pounds—now I weigh 110 pounds and never felt better in my life."

That's the big reason a host of men and women take Kruschen to lose weight—as the fat goes you gain in health—skin clears—eyes grow bright—activity replaces indolence.

Take one-half teaspoonful of Kruschen in a glass of hot water every morning before breakfast—cut down on fatty meats, potatoes and sweets—a jar of Kruschen that costs but a trifle lasts 4 weeks—get it at any drugstore in the world—but for your health's sake demand and get Kruschen Salts. —Adv.

SIGNERS TOO FEW, NO HOME RULE VOTE

COLUMBUS, Aug. 11.— Falling 22,000 signatures short of the necessary 196,000, advocates of the county home rule admendment today abandoned their statewide fight to place the issues on the ballots in the November election.

At the same time, their success in the election following the November vote-casting is almost assured as the 174,000 signatures they gathered in their petitions will be allowed to stand on the quota needed next year.

WALKER CASE

with Martin Conboy, special assistant counsel in the Walker matter. A few days ago "Big Jim" Farley. Roosevelt's campaign manager, was a visitor at the executive mansion. Rumors have it that Farley also believes the ousting of Walker from office would hurt the Roosevelt cause.

10,000 IN RAIN

Mayor Walker's arrival in Albany, where he is widely known through his many years of legislative service, was spectacular to an extreme. Nearly 10,000 people braved a drizzling rain to cheer the mayor when his train pulled into the depot. Headed by a band they escorted him to his hotel. They applauded vociferously as he stood on the steps of the hotel and waved to the crowd which battled state troopers to get close to him. Aerial bombs were set off and the greeting bore every semblance of a big-time political rally.

The mayor was given a welcome that was fully as warm as that accorded "Al" Smith and Governor Roosevelt on many occasions.

Mrs. Walker, who accompanied her husband to Albany, was visibly affected by the greeting he received. She clung to his arm as he bowed and smiled to the throng. She appeared to be proud and happy and there was a suggestion of tears in her eyes.

WIFE IMPRESSED

"I was deeply impressed," said Mrs. Walker "It was quite gratifying to realize he has the good will of so many people. That indeed is a comfort.

"I have complete confidence in what the mayor does. I am sure he will be able to cope with the situation. I insisted upon coming with him to Albany even though he did not wish me to. I wanted to be with him this time. I feel that whatever he does will be right."

Tammany has sent its chief stalwarts to support the mayor in the present crisis in his political career.

Curtin, Walker's counsel, is a close friend of former Governor Alfred E. Smith. Walker, Curtin and several close friends and advisers of the mayor conferred at length this morning preliminary to this afternoon's battle with Seabury

Seabury will have the assistance of seven members of the Hofstadter legislative committee at the hearing before the governor. William J. Schieffelin, president of the Citizens' Union, will also be present as one of the mayor's accusers. So will Attorney Thomas E. Finegan, representative of the "No Deal" party which also has brought charges against Walker.
